 Subject: Where to take my brother

Hi Yoshi,
 My brother James is coming to Japan from Singapore on Friday. He's going to stay at my house for five days. I want to show him around the town on Sunday, but I haven't decided where to take him. James is interested in art, but I don't know much about the museums around here. Also, he loves soccer and he's on the soccer team at school in Singapore. Do you have any good ideas? If you can come with us, that'd be great, too.
 Take care,
 Kevin

English-Speaking Volunteering

If you are an English speaker, like to travel, and want to help people, Pueblo Inglés in Spain is a good place to go. There is a unique volunteer program that you can join. At Pueblo Inglés, the job is to just talk.

Pueblo Inglés means “English Village” in Spanish, and it is a small, quiet village. When English-speaking travelers join the volunteer program, they are taken to the village. In the village, there are only English-speaking volunteers and Spanish people who want to learn English. Only English is spoken in the village.

Spanish people in the program talk with many different native* English speakers for a week. It is usually very difficult for them to communicate in English because the English speakers come from different countries and have different accents. They are from Canada, Australia or the U.S.A. When the program is finished, the Spanish people become better English speakers and listeners. This is surprising because after only a week in the English-only village, the Spanish people start to understand the many kinds of English they hear. They also learn to speak more than 100,000 English phrases.*

This interesting volunteer program started in 2001 and has become very popular. Many English speakers enjoy working at the small and beautiful village. They say that it is wonderful to be able to talk with so many Spanish people while they are on vacation. Such travelers usually do not have many chances to speak to many people in the country they are visiting.
